Agenda

1 Rationale for the split

2 Carve-out and listing project

3 Financials

Strategic rationale and business benefits

Split the Group into one INDUSTRIAL and one MINING/INFRASTRUCTURE company

→ Both businesses are global leaders in their respective areas

→ The businesses have different end-markets and different demand drivers

→ The businesses have different demand patterns

- A fully focused, dedicated management can
 - serve customers even better
 - drive growth and profitability
- The synergies between the two businesses are limited
- A separation into two world-leading listed companies will facilitate a fair valuation on the stock market

Capitalization - Atlas Copco and Epiroc

- Work in progress, but....
 - Both companies share the same history, and has some similar characteristics
 - strong financial position gives freedom
 - access to all financial debt markets is important
 - modest recurring investment need, thanks to business model

Capitalization - Atlas Copco and Epiroc

- Customer demand differs....

- This will be reflected in the capitalization of the two companies.
 - A somewhat lower average financial leverage (lower Net debt/EBITDA ratio) in Epiroc than for Atlas Copco

Capitalization - Atlas Copco and Epiroc

- Atlas Copco and Epiroc Boards of Directors and Management teams will in Q1 2018, jointly decide on the “day one” capitalization for Atlas Copco and Epiroc.
